“Hello, hello, I don’t know why you say good bye. I say hello!” Hello, hello, hits by the Beatles. Yeah, I know, isn’t it something when you look at them? That was like babies! Hits by the Beatles are included in the collection, some of the most iconic songs being sold by the estate of Michael Jackson. The sale of the music catalogue to partner SONY will bring this estate 750 million dollars. Vladimir Dutier of our Digital Network at CBSN is here with how the kind of pop amassed musical treasures. Vlad, good morning, good morning.

Michael Jackson was at the height of his fame in the 1980s when he began purchasing the rights, the songs including much of the Beatles catalogue. That reportedly upset Sir. Paul McCartney at that time that the two had collaborated previously. The king of pop became the owner of more than 3 million of the world’s most iconic songs including classics from Rolling Stones, Carol King and Bob Dylan.

Michael Jackson was famous for owning the spotlight, showcasing his original style of musical genius. But off the stage, the late king of pop ruled over a treasure trove of relics and melody, written and performed by other legends including the Beatles, Rolling Stones and Bob Dylan. In 1985, Jackson purchased ATV Music Publishing for 41.5 million dollars. The sale included the majority of the Beatles catalogue including many Lennon McCartney classics. In 1995, Jackson sold half interest to SONY Music to create ATV Music Publishing. The deal gave Jackson, now his estate, 50% control of some of the newest generation of stars including Taylor Swift, Ed Sheeran and Pharrell Williams.

It proved to be the pop star’s most lucrative investments in a business career that was riddled with values and debt. On Monday, Jackson’s estate agreed to sell its stake in the company to SONY for 750 million dollars. The sale is expected to finalize in March and is more than 17,000 % increase on what Jackson paid for ATV originally. It does not however include rights the master recordings, nor songs that Michael Jackson wrote.
