Tonight polar plunge. A dangerous blast of Arctic air roars in. 45 states now below normal over a foot of blinding snow falling and the worst is yet to come. Nightly news begins right now. From NBC news, world headquarters in New York, this is NBC Nightly News with Lester Holt. Good evening wintry weather is making for miserable, even deadly conditions in parts of the country tonight with falling temperatures across nearly every state.

Since yesterday, there have been several weather related pileups on the roads as heavy snow makes for treacherous driving in parts of the northeast and Midwest. And tonight as another storm barrels eastward from the Pacific Northwest, much of the country is also bracing for a brutal blast of Arctic cold. We'll get the forecast in a moment, but first, NBC's Christine Dolgrin with the latest.

Today was another deadly day on the roads. In Sweden, New York, one man died after losing after losing control of his SUV. In Ohio, another massive chain reaction crash, the third in 24 hours. Nearly 50 cars and trucks slammed into each other in the snow. 20 people injured, some had to spend hours in their cars waiting to get out of the cold while pileup clashes in Pennsylvania and Michigan are finally clear. In Upstate, New York, blinding lake effect snow, more than a foot in places, creating headaches for drivers and anyone trying to get out. They are used to this kind of weather up here. But the atmosphere is so unsettled, this storm also brought rare thunder snow. Almost 40% of the country is now covered in snow. Even parts of Texas saw a light dusting. Seattle giving us a glimpse of more to come. Ice on the roads had wheel spinning and cars sidelined.

On top of all these 45 states seeing below normal temperatures today. Emergency crews in states like Iowa and Illinois getting ready for a rough weekend ahead. And here in Pearisburg New York, we've already got more than 19 inches and Lester, here is what happens when you don't your car out. With more snow on the way, doesn't look like this one is going anywhere, anytime soon. Alright Chrstine Dolgrin, thanks Dillan Dryer is here watching it all for us. The dreaded Siberian Express on its way, Dillon, what are we looking for ahead of the weekend and beyond?
